Sioux City, May 13.—Yesterday the Omahas buried the Sioux, to-day they danced a hornpipe on their graves. Up till the sixth inning the chances for a resurrection were good, but two rank throws from third base let in the runs which patted the mould over the mud. Lincoln, Neb., May 13.—The [illegible] special bearing the presidential party entered the state of Nebraska [illegible] this morning and the president began the work of the day at [illegible] which was the [illegible] of his arrival at Hot Springs. A large crowd [illegible] school children were gathered at the station and the president's appearance [illegible] general [illegible] Governor Thayer, Lieutenant Governor Majors and all the state officers joined the special at [illegible] and welcomed the visitors to the state. The travelers arrived at Lincoln at [illegible] o'clock and received a most cordial welcome. A procession was formed and the visitors escorted in carriages to the capitol where formal addresses of welcome were made by Governor Thayer on behalf of the state and by the mayor of Lincoln on behalf of the city

Appropriate responses were made by the president the postmaster general and the secretary of agriculture

The president was presented by the Traveling men of Nebraska with an address embossed on satin. He also received an [illegible] from the children of the parochial school The city was handsomely decorated for the occasion and business was entirely suspended during the [illegible] hours which [illegible] just one hour

The mail carriers of the city were mounted and acted as a special escort to the postmaster general during the parade

Just before leaving the president received a large delegation from Omaha They preceded him in a special train to Omaha

The Reception at Omaha.

Omaha May 13.—Nowhere has the president received a heartier and more enthusiastic welcome than was accorded him by the citizens of Omaha to-day. The people turned out [illegible] in honor of the occasion and they cheered the president nearly the entire time of his appearance in the city in public. The loyal manifestations were not confined to buildings and business houses, but were observed on many private dwellings. The visitors were met at the depot by a large committee of citizens headed by Mayor Cushing and the city council, and were taken to the court house stand. Their escort was composed of mounted police, the Second regiment United States infantry, General Wheaton commanding, and Omaha guards who acted as a special guard of honor to the president.

As the procession entered the viaduct a national salute was fired. Many thousand persons were massed about the grand stand and the streets were cleared for the procession with considerable difficulty

When, the president, Secretary Rusk and Postmaster General Wanamaker took their seats, the multitude broke into loud and continuous cheering Mayor Cushing made a short address of welcome, and in closing introduced the president who advanced to the front of the stand amid great enthusiasm and delivered a neat speech which was received with much applause.

In his speech the president said

"Twice it has been my pleasure to spend a brief time in this great commercial metropolis of the great valley of the Missouri. I have had opportunity therefore to witness the rapid development which your city has made. I recollect it as I saw it in 1881, and as I see it to-day, I feel that I need to be [illegible] production in these great valleys for which we must seek foreign markets. I do not know how soon it may be that we shall cease to be dependent on any foreign market for any farm products. With the rapid development which is being made in manufacturing pursuits, with the limitation which the rapid occupation of our public domain will put upon the increase of agriculture, it cannot be a very distant day when the farmer shall realize the ideal condition and find a market out of his own farm wagon for what he produces. It has been a source of constant thought and of zealous effort on the part of the administration at Washington to secure larger foreign markets for our farm products. I rejoice to know that we have now freer and larger access for our meats to the markets of England and of Europe than we have had in many years. I believe, under the provision looking to reciprocal trade in the law of the last congress, that we shall yet open larger and new markets for the product of Nebraska farms, and I think this hope fills the great west as well as the east,—that when this increased traffic and commerce is found upon the sea it shall be carried in American bottoms. I hope the day is not far distant when the sight of great American ships flying the stars and stripes at the fore, will be familiar, not only in our ports, but in every busy mart of commerce the world around [Cheers.]

The government must provide a currency for the use of our people. I only desire to say, that whatever money the government issues, paper or coin, it must be good money. I have an idea that every dollar we issue should be as good as any dollar we issue for [illegible] the first errand it does is to pay some workingman for his day's toil None so much as the laboring man and the farmer require a full value dollar of permanent value the year around."

Speeches were also made by the postmaster general and the secretary of agriculture

The visitors were then taken across the street to the rotunda of The Bee building, where the president held a public reception, during which he shook hands with several thousand persons. The reception was followed by a drive over the principal part of the city and to the high school, where nearly 12,000 school children were gathered They greeted the chief magistrate with national airs, and received his thanks in a short speech. A similar scene was enacted at Creighton college, after which the visitors proceeded to the residence of ex-Senator Saunders and had dinner

About a thousand people surrounded the train and ex Congressman Reed introduced to them the president Mr. Wanamaker and Mr. Rusk, each of whom made short speeches. Another stop was made at Shenandoah, Iowa, where a salute was fired by the local militia The president briefly expressed his thanks for the reception. At 9:05 p. m. the train entered Missouri and passed through here at 9:10 p m An enthusiastic reception was given by the Maryville people to whom the president made a few remarks.

Revolution Expected in Hayti.

New York, May 13.—Advices received by persons in this city from correspondents in Hayti indicate that a political outbreak, which may result in a civil war, is imminent in that republic. This feeling prevails to a general extent throughout the domain of Hippolyte, and is strengthened by the fact that within the past few weeks the president himself has narrowly escaped assassination at the hands of [illegible] Recently while returning [illegible] the city [illegible] President Hippolyte was fired upon by four men hidden under a bridge over which he was passing. Two of his companions were killed and in the excitement which followed the would-be assassins escaped

It was not until [illegible] days before news of the attempted killing of Hippolyte leaked out, [illegible] which were [illegible] the public from learning of the affair. Accident on the Midland

Leadville May 13.—An accident occurred on the Colorado Midland this morning near Florissant which resulted in two deaths. As train No. 1 running at a high rate of speed reached the down grade at Idlewild a push car containing three men, and also on a down grade was seen coming towards it. They met with frightful force on a small bridge.

The names of two of the unfortunates who were section men were Slattery and O'Brien. The name of the third could not be learned. Slattery was ground into fragments. O'Brien died later from his injuries and the unknown escaped. Before Slattery's remains could be gathered up it was necessary to procure a coffin

The scene of the wreck was a small edging over a dry creek bed between two low foot hills On either side of the bridge the railroad track suddenly curves and disappears in gullies opening out in the depression between the hills The track approaches the creek on each side on a steep down grade, the bridge being the lowest point in the depression. The men on coming out of the cut at a terrific speed saw the passenger train just appearing round the corner on the opposite side They attempted to stop the car, but the brake was out of order and had little or no effect. The car struck the pilot of the engine in the centre of the bridge with the result told above.

Trans-Missouri Traffic Association.

Denver, May 13.—The Trans-Missouri Traffic association met at the Albany hotel to-day with a full representation from all the roads present. And it is very probable that the association will be in session all the week. To-day the question of reducing the tourist rate from the Missouri river to Colorado from $[illegible] to $[illegible] was considered. Hon. E. M. Patterson addressed the association on behalf of Denver, arguing in favor of a lower rate. Delegations from Manitou and Colorado Springs laid before the railroads facts which went to show that since the rate had been raised to $[illegible] that the travel from the east to those points had fallen off over one third. The same state of affairs was shown to exist at other summer resorts.

Judge Kerr and Colonel John Livesey of Pueblo, met with the association and asked for a special rate to the opening of the Colorado Mineral Palace on July 4. The association received the various delegations very kindly, and it seems by the opinion that the reductions asked for will be granted.

Corte Explains

New Orleans, May 13. Signor Corte, the Italian consul, said to-day that he was not recalled, but only summoned home to give his testimony in regard to the affair of March 14. He knew of no reason why he should be recalled, and asked if it was because he had the courage to express an opinion upon matters vital to the dearest sentiments of his countrymen. Mr. Corte, continuing, said that he had saved Mayor Shakespeare's life and the lives of Messrs. Parkerson, Wickliffe and other leaders. The day after the killing there was a determined resolution among certain of his countrymen to kill the mayor and all those who had had a hand in the lynching Mr Corte said he [illegible] their hands, and told them if harm befell the gentlemen he would immediately denounce the perpetrators of the deed The consul believed an amicable understanding in regard to the imbroglio was near at hand He was not surprised at the action of the grand jury in returning his letter and said he could expect nothing more from the jury whose chairman, as president of the cotton exchange, endorsed the killing Relative to his departure for Italy Mr Corte said he could not leave until he heard from Mr Porta. This word would probably be in a day or so.

The Fires in Michigan

Baldwin, Mich., May 13.—The forest fires still are not under control. Thompsonville is not entirely out of danger but the citizens are back firing around the town and doing everything possible to prevent it getting into the village Warren's log roll-way, eight miles north of here, is in immediate danger should the wind shift to the north.

To-day several hundred came in from the country with the same story—that of losing all buildings and their contents and escaping with what they had on their backs. Last night Mr Johnson, near Branch, left his home for a short time, and on his return found his barn and outbuildings were in a short time to be destroyed. He immediately set to work to fight fire, but was driven away by the intense heat

It is understood that The Times will sue on Smith's bond to recover actual and exemplary damages. There is considerable feeling against Smith's action among the business men and Col W B Merchant a prominent Republican attorney characterized Smith's action in refusing The Times admission to the mails, because it published a supreme court decision as "an outrage upon the rights of the people and freedom of the press."

Fairchild's Silver Plan

Providence, R. I., May 13.—The Young Men's Democratic club here gave a dinner to Hon Charles S Fairchild, ex-secretary of the treasury, who, speaking upon silver and currency, said

"My position is that the secretary of the treasury should be allowed to buy silver bullion to an unlimited extent, then to issue silver certificates against it, or coin certificates, but to have a safety valve which would stop the process when the business of the country demonstrated that the issue of silver had gone far enough. The maximum of silver, beyond the outstanding certificates, might be held by the treasury. When $10,000,000 of the silver had been accumulated, it would be a warning that the business of the country was getting more silver than it needed. Then let the purchase of silver cease until the surplus diminished to $5,000,000, when the purchase might begin again. It is not a question of sentiment but what kind of tools shall be used in the transaction of business."

Damage From Floods.

Albuquerque, N. M., May 13.—The waters are slowly subsiding and recent advices from Espanola above this city say that the river has fallen 28 inches since Friday noon. No damage has been done to this city, and the volume of water in the river has so decreased that no possible damage can ensue. At Barelas, below here, the last bank has gradually worn away until it is within a few yards of the railroad track, but the company are riprapping and constructing a wing dam so that now the track is regarded as safe.

In Valencia county much damage has been done. The little village of Valencia is almost entirely wiped out. The bridge across the Rio Grande at Las Lunas is impassable and thousands of acres of growing crops have been destroyed, and a number of poor people along the river rendered homeless. The worst is now generally regarded as over.

A Strike Threatened.

Chicago, May 13 A serious strike is expected to occur on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad at 6:30 to-morrow. The difficulty is with the switchmen, who are backed it is understood, by the trainmen. Great secrecy was maintained to-night both by the employees and officials, with the result that the question is an open one whether the trouble will not involve the whole system. It was with difficulty known at midnight that the company were making preparations for a struggle. It is said that the expected strike is the outcome of the reinstatement of switchmen obnoxious to the union about whom there has been much controversy.

Riders in the Time of Alexander.

One of the most precious relics of the past is a bronze statuette dug up at Herculaneum in 1751, and thought to be a copy of the equestrian statue known to have been made of Alexander the Great by Lysippus after the battle of the Granicus, when statues of all the brave who fell in this initial victory were made by the famous sculptor If it is truly a copy of Lysippus' work we can judge from it how the Macedonians managed their horses in a hand-to-hand contest. The king is shown sitting on a blanket firmly held in place by a breast strap and girth. Without dropping the reins from his bridle hand he grasps this substitute for a saddle at the withers, and turning full half way to the right and looking backward, gives a swinging cut with his sword to the rear, covering as big an arc of the circle as the best swordsman who ever sat in a saddle.

The statue is full of life and natural to a degree. If not Lysippus' work, it is that of a consummate artist. The position shows great freedom of movement on the horse, and a seat strong and elastic. That the Macedonians kept their heels well away from the horses flanks, or rather that they did not rely on their heels to cling to him, is shown by their commonly wearing spurs, a thing the Indian usually avoids, and the same habit shows clearly in this piece of art.

Care of the Hair.

The hair, like every other portion of the human frame, if uncared for will go to waste and eventually drop out. This is due to a splitting of the ends of the hair, so that the interior oil duct which nourishes the hair is exposed, and the natural nourishment of the hair runs to waste, overflows upon the head, forming dandruff, which impedes the growth of the hair just as much as the tares among wheat. The best means to prevent this is a strengthening of the hair and this can easily be accomplished by frequent cutting and the use of salt water and vaseline.

Have you ever noticed what bushy hair seafaring men have? Did you ever see a bald sailor? It is because their hair is in constant contact with the invigorating salt air, and is often wet with salt water A good tonic of salt water should contain a teaspoonful of salt to a tumbler of water, and should be applied to the hair two or three times a week. The effect at the end of a month will be surprising.—American Spectator

FOR SALE.

1 The magnificent business property southwest corner Pike's Peak and Nevada avenues in the exact heart of the city being at the point where the original four corners come together. This property has a frontage of over 150 feet on Nevada avenue and 100 feet on Pike's Peak avenue, and has 14 feet on the alley by the [illegible] Inside of two years this corner will be as good as the corner of Pike's Peak and Tejon streets for business purposes, if not better, for it fronts on two 140 feet avenues and being more centrally located, commands the situation and I will sell it for one third the price that will buy the other. Meanwhile the improvements on it pay the taxes and leave a handsome surplus

2 The equally splendid residence property on North Tejon street, fronting 400 feet on the Rapid Transit line running from Willamette avenue to Monument street, with a depth of 190 feet to a 20 feet alley, in a most desirable neighborhood. One half the frontage on Tejon street and the 190 ft frontage on Willamette avenue is bordered with ten year old maple and locust trees. I will sell this grand property if taken at once, for $35,000 Compare this with the corner one fourth the size in Shook's Run bottom which the school board was so glad to get for $8,800, and you will see it is very cheap

I have a large block of desirable property, consisting of lots improved and unimproved, which, while a good deal of money is required to handle it, I will sell for just one half its real worth at market prices The improvements yield a very fair return over and above the taxes, and within two years the property should be sold at a profit of at least 100 per cent for anyone who will invest in it now This is really a big thing, and I will be glad to show it to anyone who means "business." None others need apply

4 A choice business corner on Huerfano street, 75 by 190 feet. A first class location for a warehouse, a grain and feed store, or a large blacksmithing establishment, which will catch all the trade entering town from the west. Or it would be just the corner for a forwarding and commission house, a coal and lumber and wood yard, or a stone and marble yard, large enough to show and keep stock properly, and convenient for shipping via several lines of railroad. This is a great property for someone who has the means with which to buy it, and the business requiring such a location

1. I am authorized to offer for sale, for a short time, the charming country residence and estate, so well and favorably known as Ridge Lawn, comprising 150 acres of enclosed land only ten miles north-east of town on a good boulevard road. This place is subdivided into four fields, and seventy acres are under cultivation. No irrigation is required, good crops of grain and potatoes being raised without it. The improvements consist of a handsome house of 9 rooms and bath room with hot and cold water, water being furnished from hydraulic ram set in the fine springs which abound on the property. There is a bungalow, 20x30, barn with 5 box stalls, carriage, feed and chicken house and room for ten tons of hay; meat house, dairy house; ice house containing ten tons of pure ice, cut from pond covering an acre of ground near the house containing water fourteen feet deep from the springs, ever flowing and pure. An Italian prince says there is no such thing as the Mafia in Italy. If this is true, one reason for it is because the Italian government has killed a part of its members, and driven the rest to America.

The Rio Grande company is getting a great deal of well deserved credit for the way in which they provided for the governor's and president's trains. It was no more than might be expected, but it could not well have been better.

Much of the loss and destruction now occurring from forest fires would be prevented if a few suitable regulations were enforced for the disposal of tops and boughs, and in other ways regulating an industry which is of so great and general importance.

New York's action in refusing to make an appropriation for the World's Fair is very shortsighted selfishness. It was of course a very decided blow to her supremacy when it was decided to locate the fair elsewhere; but it would do her much greater injury should the world see what a fine exposition the rest of the states could get up without her.

In the prompt action of the United States government in the Itata matter there is doubtless a reminiscence of the Alabama affair. The remembrance of the trouble which that cruiser caused us in our day of trouble, would be enough to incline the administration to prompt action; and the remembrance of the sum paid by Great Britain in settlement of the Alabama claims is probably still more influential.

One of the visiting speakers the other evening suggested that there ought to be a law requiring cabinet officers to make annual trips through the country. The thought which prompted the suggestion is a good one, but there is no reason why these officers should not now make the trips as proposed. There is no law against it, and if they were carried out in honesty of purpose there would never be any serious objection on the part of the people.

Next Tuesday there will be held in Denver the meeting of the "Western Congress." A careful effort is being made to avoid the things which wrecked the Kansas City conference and to make it a success in every way. Over one thousand delegates will be present from the states west of the Mississippi, and it is hoped that much good will result from the meeting. The Colorado Springs delegation will gladly co-operate in all measures calculated to uphold and advance the interests of the west.

Among its editorial notes yesterday morning the Denver News contained the following very pleasant comment on the decorations in this city. It is pleasant to know that amid all the interest and satisfaction of Denver's own magnificent reception to the president, the paper found occasion to recognize the efforts of our citizens.

"Colorado Springs must be awarded the honor of having provided the most elegant and tasteful decorations in honor of President Harrison's visit. In exquisite design, variety and profusion they surpassed anything either in Denver, Leadville or Pueblo, and the fact should be acknowledged as distinctly illustrative of the character of Colorado Springs people, which appears to be modeled after the natural surroundings of the city."

On the face of it the Chilian insurgents are patriots, having good reason for battling against the encroachments of a tyrannical president. But it is becoming evident that the true causes of the war have been concealed. There has already been too much talk about English nitrate kings and New York millionaires who want concessions, and San Francisco millionaires who want, or have, nobody knows what, but are sufficiently interested on one side or the other to put up large sums of money for supplies and munitions of war. There may be a great deal of pure patriotism on both sides, but it is not patriotism to carry on the war any longer. If France, Brazil and the United States can find any way to stop this unholy and mercenary strife, they should do so.

Colorado Springs is pleased to extend its hospitality to the county superintendents of public schools, now in convention assembled. As the representatives of the state in maintaining the public school system in the various counties, these men are bound to exercise an important influence upon the future of our state. Of course good schools depend primarily upon good teachers, but good teachers are largely dependent upon good superintendents. These men are doing a great deal of hard work for not very abundant pay. As a rule the county superintendents of this state are awake to the importance of their task and are striving earnestly to fulfill it. Such gatherings as the present one are of undoubted benefit, and we trust that our visitors may gain pleasure as well by their short stay in our city.

Each Had a Specialty.

Denver News.

At Glenwood the presidential party were especially pleased with the great bathing pool; at Leadville with the earnest devotion of the people to silver, at Salida with the happy appearance of the school children, at Pueblo with the architectural designs of the mineral palace, at Colorado Springs with the beauty of the city and its environs, and at Denver with its vast commercial promise. At each place they recognized the enthusiastic character of their welcome and appreciated it accordingly.

OUT WEST

The new Metropole hotel, which was opened in Denver on Monday last, is one of the finest places of the sort in the city. The building has been built by the Windsor Land and Investment company, which owns the Windsor hotel of that city, and has been leased to Bush & Adair, the present lessees of the Windsor. No finer tableware than that of the Metropole has ever been seen in the west, one set for twelve people alone costing $460.

Cattle on the ranges from Denver south to the New Mexico line are still thin and the green grass is slow in starting. The prices for range beef this summer and autumn will be better than for years.

The Little Book Cliff narrow gauge railway at Grand Junction has been completed, and is in active operation. It is eleven miles long and was built for the special purpose of handling coal for the Grand Junction market.

"Spiking" a Neighbor.

The workmen employed at one of the chair making works in an English town were cutting up a large cherry tree at the circular saw bench when something squirted in the sawyer's face and ran over the bench in all directions. The engine was stopped, and an examination showed that the saw had struck a cavity in the tree and liberated a considerable quantity of quicksilver, afterward estimated as half a gill. The log was carefully examined, and it was found that many years previously a hole had been bored in a slanting downward direction through the heart of the tree, the quicksilver poured in and the hole carefully plugged. The rings of the tree showed that it was ninety years old, and that after the hole had been plugged the growth had covered the head of the plug with several inches of solid wood.

As it was known the tree came out of an old cherry orchard at Allerton, Yorkshire, where yearly "a cherry feast" used to be held, it was thought the quicksilver had been put in the tree in connection with some old custom, but later it was found that up to thirty or forty years ago quicksilver was thus employed to kill fruit or other trees by those who had "grudges" against their neighbors. It was usual to do this in the dead of night. A piece of bark was first carefully taken off, the hole bored—quicksilver poured in, the hole plugged, and last the bit of bark was carefully replaced. The tree from the next rising of the sap began to wither. In the present case the attempt was a failure, for except where the quicksilver had lain it had not penetrated some inches beyond the end of the boring the tree was sound.—Notes and Queries.

Hopton's Compromise.

Near a town in the southern part of Georgia lived Mr. Branscombe, a wealthy fruit grower, who was embroiled in a perpetual feud with a poor "cracker" named Hopton. The feud was based on Hopton's hog, which committed havoc in Branscombe's garden, and Branscombe finally shot the animal.

War was at once declared by Hopton, not against Branscombe personally, but against all his belongings. He tore down fences, wrung the necks of chickens, smeared Branscombe's front steps with paint, and continued this petty persecution until the fruit grower was exasperated beyond endurance.

He set a watch on Hopton, and finally caught him in the act of pouring turpentine into the pump. The next day Branscombe swore out a warrant for Hopton's arrest for malicious mischief, and it was served that afternoon.

Hopton resisted violently, but finally calmed down, and while on his way to the office of the justice of the peace expressed a wish to see Mr. Branscombe and "settle the whole affair." The constable was an obliging fellow, and acceded to this request.

"Kunnel," said Hopton, when brought before Branscombe, "let's compromise this matter."

"Very well," assented Branscombe readily. "During the past six months you have committed damages to the extent of $200. What is your proposition?"

"It's this, kunnel," drawled Hopton. "You drop this prosecuting me, and I'll let ye off."—Youth's Companion.

The Origin of "Grog."

Until the time of Admiral Vernon the British sailors had their allowance of brandy or rum served out to them unmixed with water. This plan was found to be attended with inconvenience on some occasions on account of a shortage in the brandy locker, and the admiral, therefore, ordered that in the fleet he commanded the spirits should be mixed with water before being passed around among the men. This innovation at first gave great offense to the hardy sailors, who had been used to taking their drinks "raw," the result being that Vernon became very unpopular with his men.

To add to his unpopularity the admiral, who was conscious of the immense responsibility that rested upon him, became morose and gloomy, often walking the decks for hours without speaking or looking either to the right or the left. In these taciturn moods he always wore an immense grogham coat thrown loosely over his shoulders; this resulted in the sailors nicknaming him "Old Grog," and the term soon came to be applied to the weak mixture stintingly given out to the men, who had formerly looked for a regular allowance of "pure stuff." "Grog" became quite popular after a time, but not until the original mixer of the formula had "gone to his reward."—St. Louis Republic.

Her Lovely Lettuce Dish.

"I want," she said hesitatingly, as she poised her basket in front of her pretty chin with a thoughtful air, "to get some lettuce."

"Yes'm," said the market man; "here's some; very nice it is too."

"Is it all that color?"

"Why-er-yes'm; all lettuce is green you know."

"Oh, of course; but it's too bad. I got a lovely blue dish to put lettuce in, but I'm sure green would look horrible in it. I never thought about there not being any shades, you know."

And as she turned away the market man was almost sure he saw a tear of disappointment in her eye.—Washington Post.

A Horse with Eight Feet.

There is a horse on James McCloud's farm in South Dakota which has eight feet, otherwise it is perfectly formed in every respect. Not until the fetlock joint is reached in the descent from the shoulder to the foot is there any difference between this horse and any other. At the pastern joint, however, the branch begins, and two perfectly formed hoofs are found on each of the four legs.—St. Louis Republic.

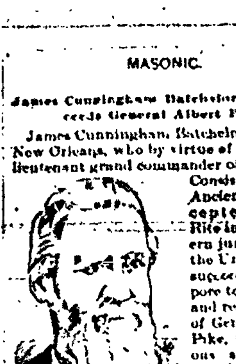
MASONIC.

James Cunningham Batchelor, Who Succeeds General Albert Pike.



DR. J. C. BATCHELOR

James Cunningham Batchelor, M. D., of New Orleans, who by virtue of his rank of lieutenant grand commander of the Grand Consistory of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in the southern jurisdiction of the United States succeeds pro tem pore to the honors and responsibility of General Albert Pike, the illustrious sovereign grand commander Thirty third degree, was born in Canada, July 10, 1815. He came south when quite young, locating in Alabama, where he was educated to the practice of medicine.

Removing to New Orleans he organized a company for the Confederate army, with which he served as captain. Wounds and exposure sent him to the rear and left him a permanent cripple. He became Master Mason in Eureka lodge, Alabama, in 1846, a Royal Arch Mason in Polar Star chapter, New Orleans, in 1850, a Knight Templar in Jacques de Molay commandery, in New Orleans, in 1850, and a high priest in 1861. He took the thirty third degree of the Scottish rite in 1857, and was gradually promoted by merit and seniority to the exalted position he now holds. He was elected grand secretary of the grand lodge of Louisiana in 1867, and held the office continually for twenty-four years.

Notes.

The grand master of the jurisdiction of Dakota has decided that a one eyed man was disqualified to receive the Masonic degrees. He made this decision because his predecessors had all ruled likewise, in the face of the fact that many men are made Masons who are unable to see at all distinctly without the aid of glasses.

The Prince of Wales has been unanimously elected grand master of the grand lodge of England. Bro. Sir Robert Stout has been adjudged guilty of a grave Masonic offense in assisting in establishing a lodge in the town of Wellington, New Zealand, under a warrant obtained from the grand orient of France, and removed from his office.

In 1658, forty-eight years after the landing of the Pilgrims, fifteen families settled what is now Newport, R. I., and a lodge of Free Masons was established.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

Facts and Figures of Interest to the Whole Order. Various Items.

Of the 183 deaths in the April assessment circular, one who joined at nineteen years of age was a quarter rate member, and had been in but ten months, seventeen joined between twenty and thirty, and their average time was seven years eleven and a half months; sixty-two were between thirty and forty, and their average time was eight years eight months, eighty nine were between forty and fifty, and their average time was nine years seven months, fourteen were between fifty and fifty-five, and their average time was eleven years eleven and a half months. The benefits to be paid amount to $363,500, two of the deceased being half and one-quarter rate members. The total amount paid in was $11,734; an average of $343.30, or 12¼ per cent., and the general average term of membership was nine years three months. The highest amount paid by any of the deceased was $1,044 by J. D. Sharon, of Winchester, Mass., who joined at fifty-four years of age, and had been a member twelve years and seven months, and the smallest sum paid by a full rate member was seven dollars, with a membership of two months and eleven days, who died of meningitis. There were six on the list who died by suicide.

Grand Dictator Richardson, of the Knights of Honor, is engaged in redistricting the state in accordance with the recommendation adopted by the grand lodge.

The supreme lodge of the Knights of Honor will meet at New Orleans. An encampment of the entire uniformed rank of the order has been ordered.

Memphis is to have a Knights of Honor hall. Steps have been taken toward the erection of such a building.

Deputy Supreme Dictator J. J. Foltz is rigorously carrying on the work in Canada.

Large Average of Membership in New England Lodges—Notes and News.

Nowhere in the world is the average membership for lodges so large as in the New England states, and of the six jurisdictions whose average membership exceeds 100 per lodge five are comprised within the limit of that territory. Massachusetts leads with an average of 195, Connecticut has 178; Maine, 172; New Hampshire, 133; Rhode Island, 127; District of Columbia, 107. From that point the number decreases to twenty-five, which honor belongs to Arkansas. Considering the total membership of the jurisdictions named, New Hampshire stands second in the list of average membership.

The Odd Fellows' home in Unionport, N. J., has an invested fund of about $40,000. Its property is free from all indebtedness, and is valued at $40,000. This institution is open to all indigent members of the order, but those who are occupants are generally of German parentage. It has now thirty-four inmates.

The Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias, of Franklin, Me., have been presented with $100 each by Cyrus Bailey, of that town, in memory of his son.

There are 1,500 brothers in New York that have been members of the order over twenty-one years.

The sovereign grand lodge allows subordinates to lay aside a portion, say not over 5 per cent.—of dues for a contingent fund.

Oregon claims now to be the banner state of Odd Fellowship in proportion to her population.

Louisiana has fifteen lodges with a membership of 870.

New York has twenty-eight lodges, with forty past grands or more to the lodge.

There are about forty five Odd Fellows' Insurance companies, from which the income last year approximated $1,660,023.97.

Green Bay has been selected as the location of the Odd Fellows' home of Wisconsin.

A. O. U. W.

Cost of the Order Compared with Other Societies—Miscellaneous.

The report of Dr William A. Richardson, chairman of the committee on vital statistics, says: The diagram compares the death rate and cost per $1,000 of insurance of the A. O. U. W. with that of seven other societies. He says: "Our own order for the past shows a decrease in the death rate of four tenths of 1 per cent., being only 8.9, enabling us to carry protection for less than $9 per $1,000. This decrease, though slight, is certainly very gratifying, and leads to the presumption that after twenty two years' experience we have perhaps pretty nearly reached our average maximum rate of assessments." The Masons, he figures, could furnish protection to their entire membership at $14 per $1,000, the Odd Fellows at $11 per $1,000, the Knights of Honor at $12.50 per $1,000, the Royal Arcanum at $8 per $1,000, the American Legion of Honor at $11.50 per $1,000, the Knights and Ladies of Honor at $10 per $1,000.

The following amounts were distributed up to April 1, 1891, to the grand lodges entitled to relief for the year 1890: New York, $71,500, Illinois, $28,000, California, $19,500, Pennsylvania, $27,500, Oregon and Washington, $12,500, Ohio, $28,000, Tennessee, $15,500, and Kentucky, $11,500. Total, $214,000.

The grand lodge of Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia has decided, by a vote of 82 to 45, not to divide the jurisdiction.

The A. O. U. W. disburses about $13,000 daily. Nearly ten dollars is paid out each minute.

The membership in New England on April 1 was 22,304.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO

There settled in Baker county, Oregon, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become identified with the resources and development of that country. This man is no other than Mr. John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says, "I had been suffering from pains in my back and general kidney complaint for some time, and I had used many remedies with no any but temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and could not move about without the use of a cane. Hearing through a friend of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try a box of it, and from that very first dose I found instant relief, and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back entirely disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."

Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, incontinence of urine, brick dust sediment, burning or painful sensation while urinating, and all affections of the kidney or urinary organs of either sex.

ONGREGATIONALISTS CONFER

ting Addresses Both Afternoon and ing at the Congregational Session

ll interested in church work have alled in this city from all over the et to attend the annual meeting of the kansas Valley association of Congregational churches, the first part of which held in the First Congregational yesterday afternoon and evening was but a small attendance at afternoon session, but despite this ging fact there was some good by those present and good rk was accomplished

At o'clock the session for the afternoon was opened by a devotional service by the Rev Alfred Alf of Alamosa which the work of the organization [illegible] was proceeded with which by the Rev A O Downs of

Rev M D Ormes from the South Congregational church of this city was moderator for the afternoon session and the Rev W G Mann of filled the place of scribe reports of progress in the of the association were read the Rev E R Earle who was to given an address on "The value of services in spiritual development" had sent word that he be unable to appear was proceeded with by the Messrs Downs, Weyler Carrington and others. These were mostly of the special services. The Mr Sanders of Denver state superintendent of home missions spoke emphasizing the personal work the Rev Mr Downs spoke at some length on the value of the special services which he believes to be profitable times Such an earnestness of is a blessing to the church they succeed or not He gave ption of the special service work own church He believes that must have excitement to become rted

Rev Mr Upton's address on "The and strong points of Congregationalism" was the most interesting of the session, being an ably ad by one who had given much ght and time to the subject.

Congregationalists are noted for their said Mr Upton but stand is wherever the living waters According to this speaker ing points of this denomination that it is a system which is going to it is more liberal than any other mination it means that the congregation is the unit of authority and nsibility, it has independence to with fellowship, and its members to believe that any far distant point, as Rome, can cast a form suit to points among the Rocky mountains its ministers stand upon merits as men—not on any siastical authority The Congregational church in this country, said Mr n is the mother of educational institutions, of the Christian Endeavor so- and is sole supporter of the rican board. The failure to raise an quate ministry, the too easy access of its pulpits the lack of denominational loyalty, and the failure to teach as other denominations do among the faults of the denomination number of those present joined in discussion of Mr Upton's subject, the usual number of moral tales supplied.

Rev Mr Fitch declined to speak subject allotted to him, as he was speak in the evening, and his place filled by Mr Downs, who spoke in a interesting manner

ere was a larger audience that ered in the church in the evening there was no cause for them to re their coming ter the devotional service the Rev Saunders, state superintendent for American board, gave an account he work throughout the state, interesting figures in regard progress of the work. From seven hes established by the American in 1876 the number has risen to wo in 1891, and the church membership has increased from 378 to 3,060 se fifteen years. Mr Fitch, state intendent of Congregational Sunday schools gave an interesting description of his work and was followed by Tichenor Bailey Mrs. Bailey was a loss for something to say upon subject of "Woman's work in the field." Her account of her work as a representative of the Home mary society was most interesting have not only Mormonism but all in the union there fight against but Mormonism is a much modified from what it was ten years ago is dead as sentiment is Non Mormon teachers are schools and the tables are turned pictures of the degrading polygamous life in Utah of the teaching lism by Mormons in the Sunday and of the flooding of that by them with infidel literature terrible results which followed the attention of her hearers to the

Trades Assembly Endorsement

Tuesday night the Plumbers, Plumbers Helpers, Steam Fitters and Helpers and Gas Fitters union presented a request to the Trades Assembly asking them to endorse their actions in allowing no union men to do work in their line on the Mrs. Rowe building on North Tejon street. The P & P H S F & H & G F union has already received the endorsement of the Master Builders Association and the Carpenters' union

The above request to the Trades Assembly was made in order to make their action agreeable to all union men interested in union movements. Along with their request they stated that Messrs. E S. Bumstead & Co., had given Mrs. Rowe figures on the work long before the contract for the whole building was let, and she could if she desired, hold them to their figures by process of law that the Plumbers and Fitters would not be working under non union workmen They further presented the Trades Assembly with a copy of resolutions adopted on the 9th of May at a special meeting Following is a copy of the resolutions Be it

Resolved, That we the Plumbers and Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters Helpers Union hereby agree and adopt the following rule viz

After the building now in process of erection by Mrs. Rowe is completed we positively refuse to do any work in our line, or recognize in any manner a building of any description wherein non union labor of any kind is employed.

After a thorough discussion of the matter the Trades Assembly granted the request.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Cheyenne Mountain club will be held at the Broadmoor offices to-day at 4 o'clock.

Miss Lu Moore did the decorating of the handsome book of flowers presented Mrs. Harrison by the citizens of Denver. The whole state turns to Colorado Springs when it wishes anything artistic or beautiful.

The report of the presidential reception will be printed in the WEEKLY GAZETTE. Copies may be secured at the business office or the news stands on Saturday. Order ahead.

Flynn & Hall's circus is billed to give a performance in this city to-day. It was at Colorado City yesterday, and it will be remembered as the company that appeared here for a week last year.

Mrs. S. W. Draper, of East Dale street, has just purchased through the agency of H. Le B. Wills, the property known as the McLain house in Boulder Heights. The price paid was $10,000, but the property until recently has been held at $17,000, the owners being forced to sell.

The Good Templars are greatly enjoying the complete renovation of their hall on Nevada avenue and have just put in a new piano, purchased of Hext & Williams. They expect at an early date to give an entertainment to which the best musical talent of the city will contribute.

Miss Prentiss is to give two pupils' recitals at Hext & Williams' piano ware rooms, occurring to-night and to-morrow night. The invitations are issued solely by the pupils who are to participate and include only a very limited number. Those who are fortunate enough to receive an invitation will hear some very enjoyable music. A public recital will be given in June.

Mr. C. D. Bennett has purchased the ranch situated ten miles north of the city known as the old Gilpin ranch, including the live stock. Mr. G. G. Hamilton has owned this valuable property for two or three years, and Mr. Bennett has had an option on it for some time. The ranch consists of 8000 acres and Mr. Bennett takes all of it but a pasture of 1200 acres that is leased. He is now residing on the place. The purchase price is not given.

Delegates to the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress, to be held at Denver on the 19th, have been appointed. The following will represent the board of trade: M. L. DeCoursey, Irving Howbert, Ira G. Sprague, E. Barnett, Charles Thurlow, Judson Bent, W. S. Jackson, C. H. White, J. A. Hayes, Geo. H. Parsons. Mayor Sprague has appointed the following as the city delegates: W. C. Frost, J. F. Seldomridge, John G. Shields. Mr. F. E. Nichols will represent the county commissioners.

There is a pretty hard gang of thieves and thugs hanging around the town just now. Every day some one reports having had his pocket picked in the crowd Monday night, and it is evident the work was that of professionals. On Tuesday evening as a well known young man of the city was walking to his home on North Cascade avenue, after the dance at The Antlers, an attempt was made to sand bag and rob him. Looking up he saw something descending through the air and threw up his arm. This partly warded off the blow, but he was knocked into the irrigating ditch. The approach of a wagon frightened away the assailants just as they were proceeding to search their victim.

Justice Farrar has been having a hard time for a few days. He was appointed to administer in the estate of Mary L. Johnson, a colored woman who died recently. He was preparing to divide the property among the four heirs, daughters who do not live here, when he found the place occupied by a colored family. It seems the congregation of the colored Baptist church claims the property. Mrs. Johnson purchased the property of the church some ten years ago, but the members claim that the trustees had no right to give a title. There have been lively times ejecting the new tenants, but yesterday one of the heirs arrived and proceeded to eject the intruders bodily. The marshal has had to interfere and the place is guarded, but the end is not yet.

MINING IN 1849.

How "Rocker" Separating Was Carried on in Pioneer Days in California.

The most expensive instrument of the early miner was the rocker, which, though simple in construction, cost in the mines from fifty to a hundred dollars. In general appearance it was not unlike a baby's cradle as used by our grandmothers and as still seen on the frontier. It consisted of a flat bottom with two sides that flared outward, and an end board at the head, while the foot was open save a riffle about an inch and a half high at the bottom to catch the gold that might pass another riffle across the bottom near the middle. At the head of the cradle was a hopper about eighteen inches square, with a perforated sheet iron bottom or wire screen. Under this was an apron, or board, sloping downward toward the head. Two substantial rockers under the whole completed the simple machine which gave to the world millions of dollars.

The modus operandi may be described [illegible] the upper side were imbedded at the river's brink, one four inches lower than the other, on which the rockers were to rest, thus securing a grade in the machine to facilitate the outward flow of the water and sand. Two miners usually worked together as partners. One shoveled the earth into the rocker, while the other, seated on a boulder or block of wood, dipped the water from the river and poured it upon the earth in the hopper with one hand, all the time rocking with the other. When the earth was thoroughly washed, he rose, lifted the hopper from its place, threw out the stones and gravel, replaced it, and thus the work went on. As the ground about the rocker became exhausted to the bed rock, recourse was had to the bucket, and the earth was carried sometimes a few rods, making laborious work for the miner.

To keep the rocker going another hand would be employed to carry earth, and each would carry two buckets at a time. Hard work of this kind suggested improvements in mining. At noon the gold and black sand collected above the riffles were taken up on a scraper and thrown into the pan, which was carried to the river and carefully washed to remove as far as possible all but the gold. The yield of the forenoon was carried to the camp, dried over a blaze, the dry sand blown out, and the gold weighed in scales or guessed at, and poured into the partnership purse and deposited under the bed or anywhere else out of sight. Century.
